

Public Speaking

Public Speaking can be quite a fright,

But after a few minutes I start to feel alright.

Once I gain confidence, I can speak for hours and hours,

I get used to the crowd and it feels like I have superpowers.

I can speak to a crowd or a number of judges watching me,

About anything from pets I have at home to litter in the sea.

As when I talk about these things I want the crowd to understand,

We should look after ^{our} oceans and precious lands.

Once the speech has finished, I stand and smile,

Knowing that what I've said will stay in peoples heads for a while.
